Practice CMAJ: Five things to know about examining the pupils. Sean A Kennedy, Jason Noble MD, Agnes M F Wong MD PhD. Assessment of the pupils is an essential component of a basic neurologic exam. If the pupils are not equally sized, they should be evaluated in bright and/or ophthalmic examination. Dim ambient light. Normally, the size of the pupil is determined by the balance of sympathetic and parasympathetic input. Anisocoria is unequal pupil size. Normally, both pupils constrict...
